How They Get Started

Now that there is a strong disposition on the part of many of Tulsa's people to build up a class hatred and to try and arrest the poor against the rich, on account of the proposition to build an adequate water line from here to the Spavinaw, it is evident that now is a good time to call attention to the fact that every one of the wealthier men of Tulsa was just as poor and just as poor as anyone else to be classed as among the common people, and whether he is working as a machinist in a shop for a dollar an hour, or is under the beam as a driller, or is swinging a sledge as a road dresser.

It has not come by accident to any of these people and, looking over the bunch, it is almost impossible to get away from the fact that most of them are right because their men have been on and have encouraged them in taking a chance when it meant almost ruin if luck were against them, but the main point with all of them has been that they were hustlers and right today, in this town of Tulsa, it is just as easy to get a start as it ever was anywhere.

It requires only the ambition and a reputation for honesty and the hustling ability to get hold of a lease that lays within the possible trend of the oil sands of Oklahoma, and in many cases, even outside of any known trend or geological recommendation. These chances are today simply screaming their hidden wealth to the man who knows enough to write a lease or to get some one else to do it for him. There is as much oil to be found in Oklahoma as in Europe and many times more than we ever produced in this state up to now.

Take the courage for an example. At the last sale, there were strangers galore looking for an opportunity to bid on some of that good stuff and if any man with a knowledge of probable trends and a reasonable argument to back it up had come to the front, he could have been carried by one of these easterners for a decent interest, but because of this same knowledge, and the Onges is in easy walking distance from Tulsa.

There is nothing that hurts a town quite so much as a disposition to find fault with the man who has made money and to show to the world that there is a mean and contemptible spirit extant when by all that is holy and righteous, the very opposite would manifest and everyone who lives here should be ashamed from the honest tone that the man who does not live in this town is missing half of a life.

About the water, there are many things that everyone can agree upon. One is that the investment of $6,000,000 is mighty small as compared with the great value of the homes of Tulsa. There are buildings up faster than a horse can trot and good water is the only thing that is absolutely needed to keep this kind going.

Another thing that all will agree on is that there is no man who is opposing the best possible plan that you would send as a representative of Tulsa's spirit and ability to do things, to the convention of dog chasers. The very voices of most of them is against them and you can spot them easily enough whether they are riding in a glass show-case or are on foot. They are not the kind that you would be proud to meet in any town away from here, from Collingsville to New York, just to look them over.

A full account of the wedding will be found elsewhere in this paper.

3,500 feet, with no increase in production, and will be shot today. The same company has well on the top of the hill at 3,349 feet and is taking 200 barrels.

It is reported that the oil companies have a shooting for about 10 barrels on the C. J. Cotton farm in Bartlesville county, at a depth of 1,450 feet.

Big Well in the Mississippi Line

The New England Oil company No. 5 in the southwest of the northeast of northeast of 13-13-15, just Mississippi line at 3,210 feet, with 1000 feet later at 3,358 feet, and well is shooting for 500 barrels per day.

Donald McMillan No. 5 Peters in the southeast of northeast of 1-14-17, is good for 50 barrels after shot at 1,275 feet.

Tennessee-6 Oil company No. 2 Saxon in the southeast of northeast of 1-14-17, is good for 20 barrels after shot at 1,225 feet.

V. L. Cooper No. 1 Furr in center of south line of southeast of south west of 22-11-15, had showing 500 barrels after shot at 1,225 feet.

McMahon No. 3 Charlie in 15-15-14, got sand at 1,270 to 1,332 feet and is good for 30 barrels after shot.

It will be noted from the above figures that there is little chance of the price of oil being lowered if anything will cause advance.

It is reported that the gas well at 1,400 feet, is drilling at 1,750 feet.

It is reported that the gas well at 1,750 feet, is drilling at 1,800 feet and expect to reach sand at 1,800 feet.

Producers' Refiners in 36-26-18, is good for 4 million feet of gas in 1,800 feet.

Kansan Oil Co. in 26-26-18, is good for a 10 barrel pump.

Mitchell Oil Co. in 29-22-18, has a hole full of water at 1,710 feet but expect to go on down to the 2,100 foot sand.

Medicine Bow Oil Co. in 21-22-18, is drilling at 1,310 feet.

There are 10 wells in the Wyoming field that are having some trouble getting jobs, but there seems to be considerable activity and with continued good weather there ought to be a number of nice completions in the next few weeks.

At 1 o'clock last night, in St. Patrick's cathedral, in Denison, Tex., the wedding of Miss Nell Alford and Mr. Jules Constantine was solemnized. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Denison hotel. The occasion was one of particular interest to Texans because of Mr. Constantine's great popularity with all those connected with the oil fraternity, and especially the marketers and refiners, who have known him all his life. A large number of guests from Tulsa went to Denison to attend the wedding and the reception. After an extended tour of the east, Mr. Constantine and his bride will return to Tulsa late in the summer, and will be at home in a beautiful new bungalow in Morningside.
